General description	The course focuses on integration and Intercultural relations in multicultural societies, beginning with a review of key concepts involved in these processes. Taking a critical and constructive perspective, we analyze existing practices in the Spanish state and at the international level. Taking into account students' interest and experiences, we develop proposals for research and/or intervention in various socio-educational contexts, taking care to develop them within a theoretical framework that provides contextualization and justification

Methodologies
Methodologies	Description
Guest lecture / keynote speech	(Lecture sessions) Oral presentations by the instructor which establish and relate scientific and disciplinary knowledge essential for the understanding of the subject. The presentation will be complemented by the use of pertinent resources (textual and/or audiovisual).
Document analysis	Methodological technique that involves the use of audiovisual and/or bibliographic documents (segments of documentary reports or films, news, web pages, scientific articles, legislative texts, etc.) relevant to the subject matter, accompanied by activities specifically designed for their analysis.
Supervised projects	The final project for the course will consist of an action/research proposal. The justification and the design of the proposal will draw upon the material addressed in the lecture sessions and directed discussions.
Directed discussion	Sessions will be allocated to the introduction of questions addressed to students to encourage reflective dialogue. This approach is based on the conception of learning as a dialogical process, an act of (re) creation, relating and consolidating reflection and action. The debate will facilitate and promote the sharing and contrasting of informed opinions. With this methodology we aim to: identify difficulties in understanding; inspire divergent thinking; promote a connection with lived experiences; and develop awareness of and critically reconstruct new ways of thinking, feeling and acting. The directed discussion can be developed in person (in the classroom sessions) or virtual (forums).

Personalized attention
Methodologies	Description
Directed discussion Supervised projects	For students with official part time status and those who receive academic dispensation and exemption from attendance, we will design a specific tutoring schedule at the beginning of the course that is compatible with these requirements.

Assessment
Methodologies	Competencies	Description	Qualification
Directed discussion	A13 B4 B18 B22 C5	Participation grade To be evaluated: Participation in class preparation tasks and class session debates/virtual forums, with respect to the following criteria: the assignment is completed before the established deadline, the issue is addressed with a depth that demonstrates understanding and support from the external sources consulted, important ideas are well-synthesized, the arguments are creative, they demonstrate an ability to defend, criticize, and evaluate, and the language is clear and correct.	20
Supervised projects	A4 A5 A6 A11 A14 B1 B2 B5 B14 B18 B19 B20 C1 C5 C6 C7	Final project To be evaluated: quality of description and depth of analysis of realities and political and social responses, quality and feasibility of the proposal, degree of support by up-to-date and relevant external references, use of language appropriate for academic and scientific contexts, formal aspects related to the quality of the presentation.	80

Assessment comments

The same tasks will be evaluated for the first and second opportunities.

The participation grade cannot be changed for the second opportunity. This grade, which reflects the student's course participation, will be saved from the first opportunity.

For students who are registered in the on-line modality, discussion forums on the Moodle platform will replace participation in classroom debates. These as well as the class preparation tasks must be completed by the assigned deadline to receive full credit in the participation grade.
