Methodologies	Description
Online discussion	Written debates about student essays on Moodle

Guest lecture / keynote speech	Lectures on human social behavior and environmental problems
Simulation	Cooperation games
Directed discussion	Oral debates on student essay topics and any other differences of opinion arising during the course

Personalized attention
Methodologies	Description
Guest lecture / keynote speech Directed discussion Online discussion	Part-time and attendance-exempt students can choose whether to be graded in the same way as regular students or only with three essays on topics assigned by the teacher and written debates about them in Moodle. In the essays, students must defend ideas that are compatible with the scientific evidence as presented in the keynote speeches and the summaries of them that the teacher will upload to Moodle. Alternatively, students can argue why they disagree with the keynote speeches and their summaries.

Assessment comments
Each student can submit, singly or in a group, three written essays on topics assigned by the teacher for online discussion in Moodle and present them orally for directed discussion. In the essays, students must defend ideas that are compatible with the scientific evidence as presented in the keynote speeches and the summaries of them that the teacher will upload to Moodle. Alternatively, students can argue why they disagree with the keynote speeches and their summaries. Each written essay is worth up to 30 points. Students who do not submit any essay will get a "No show" grade. Participating in each small group session in the assigned schedule is worth 2.5 points. Points obtained by attending small group sessions are kept for the second and the ahead-of-schedule opportunity. For the second and the ahead-of-schedule opportunity, each student can submit, singly or in a group, three written essays, each worth 30 points. Students can get the "Honors" grade in any opportunity, but preferably on the first. Part-time and attendance-exempt students can choose whether to be graded in the same way as regular students or only with three essays as above and written debates about them in Moodle.
