Contingency plan	1. Modifications to the contents
	No change
	2. Methodologies
	*Teaching methodologies that are maintained
	All teaching methodologies are maintained, being moved to an online environment, with the exception of the final practical test.
	*Teaching methodologies that are modified
	The final practical test is eliminated. Its weight in assessment is replaced by case studies and the supervised project.
	3. Mechanisms for personalized attention to students
	Constant attention via e-mail and Moodle. Teams will be used for synchronous class sessions, following the timetable in the official calendar for the degree, and one-on-one tutorials.
	4. Modifications in the evaluation
	The definite weight of the different types of assessment will depend on the moment this contingency plan is activated.
	In any case, all assessment activities already completed, as well as the 10% for systematic observation, will be conserved.
	The weight of any assessment activity that could not be completed, including the final practical test, will be substituted first by an increase in the weight of the project up to 40% and then by an increase in the weight of the case studies.
	*Evaluation observations:
	In a contingency plan scenario, for students to obtain an NP (absent) qualification, they must not have handed in the supervised Project.
	5. Modifications to the bibliography or webgraphy
	No change

Assessment comments

In general, the correct use of English will be taken into account in all assessment activities.

It is necessary to achieve 4 points out of 10 in each of the activities to consider the subject as PASSED.

The FINAL TEST will be held on the exam date selected by the School, as responsible for the organization of the degree. All dates (both the dates of the oral presentation, project and deadlines for case studies) will be communicated to students well ahead of time. Reading, writing, listening and speaking tasks completed in class cannot be resat.

"NON PRESENTADO" QUALIFICATION:

To be considered NP (absent), students MUST NOT have sit EITHER the final test OR the project. JULY OPPORTUNITY:

Students who have failed the subject may only resit those parts that they have failed. New dates will be established to hand in tasks. The weight of the final WRITING, READING, SPEAKING and LISTENING tasks could be increased so that students could compensate for tasks completed in class and failed.

Subjects that are recommended to be taken simultaneously

Subjects that continue the syllabus

Other comments

Students are required to have achieved a B1 level for English according to the CEFR for languages to access the degree, and consequently they are expected to have that level of proficiency as a previous requirement for the subject. This holds even if there are support measures and materials prepared for those students with more difficulties.
